REVENUE FRAUDS.

WASHINGTON, August 18.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is making strenuous efforts to break up the numerous frauds practiced upon the department throughout the country, and for that purpose is giving special instructions to Supervisors. A large number of important seizures may be expected during the middle of September, as the evidence is now in hand against several large establishments in various parts of the country. The transfer of Supervisors, Gaugers and Storekeepers from one section to another is proving quite successful to the interest of a number of dishonest officials, who had heretofore had a nice thing of it.

THE TEST OATH OPINION.

Well-informed parties here are confident that Attorney General Hoar will sustain Conductor Bates in regard to the test oath. It will be remembered that it was decided by the Virginia Legislature, South as well as Grant, will sustain Hoar, but Fish, Stanton, yet have the will power left, holding the test oath of Congress does not require the first oath of the Virginia legislature. Conductor Bates is regarded as unconstitutional, though some claim that he will coincide with Fish and Hoar also. It is also understood that Attorney General Hoar has not yet prepared any opinion, which will control the action of the Secretary of the Treasury, but will simply be decisive in this most important subject.

TELLOCK

who was re-instated the appointment of Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, has selected upon the discharge of his duties, and will retain his former position of Assistant Chief of the Treasury Department. The chief solution of the reasons for the retention of Tellock may be found in the fact that he, from knowledge acquired as Secretary of the Republican Committee, can be able to detect the partisan frauds that have been practiced under the Government, consequently he is useful to Boutwell, who intends making a complete change in the department.

THE PRESIDENT NEW APPOINTMENTS.

Hon. Caleb Cushing, Judge Ker, Jones, and Judge Johnson, the Commission, appointed to revise and arrange the statutes relating to patents and copyrights, have completed their labors and the book is now being issued from the Government printing office.

A SPLIT IN MARYLAND.

A serious split has occurred in the Republican party in Maryland, which is evinced by the decision of Postmaster-General Cox well. The ruling of the postal service by Judge Reed, in favor of Gen. Schenck, announcing the faithful Republicans and the Fulton family generally. Creswell belongs to the Fulton faction, and it is charged has used the Federal patronage in Maryland to aid his political fortunes.

DELAWARE AND MARYLAND RAILROAD.

WILMINGTON, Aug. 18.—In the case of Cooper and others against the Delaware and Maryland Railroad Company, in the Chancery Court, to-day, the Chancellor decided that the road has made a decree holding the bondholders of the old company entitled to the mortgages in discharging that part of the bondholders which consists of the bonds of the present company, and, as individual liability of debtors, some parties take an appeal to the Supreme Court. Every precaution was taken by the Chancellor, in rendering his decision, to protect the interests of the bondholders, and it is considered as the ablest opinion which has been rendered in a similar case, and will be accepted as the principle in future cases.

NAVAL MOVEMENTS.

The U. S. steamer Nantasket arrived at Key West on the 14th.

The Telegram, the vessel reported as constructing dredgeboats at Louisville, has been in the employ of the Mississippi River Commission.

The Canandaigua has proceeded to Aspinwall to relieve the Tuscarora.

CUBA.

Encouraging Accounts from Rebel Sources—The Patriots Decided Their Position—They Fight Under Arms—Advertising Conscripts Desert—Etc., Etc.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Letters from Cuba to the 9th, giving encouraging accounts of the hopes and situation of the revolutionary party.

The most conspicuous colored man by the name of Cuba is the one named in this connection. Ayuntamiento, or Bureau, it is said, has had the effect of greatly increasing their forces. Many have given a good account of themselves in battle and constituted important portions of the attacking forces. Others have deserted to the enemy, and others have come in from the interior towns.

The Spanish army is being gradually reduced by desertion. Many of those sympathize with the patriots. The Spanish Government is said to be aware of this, and is confident that everything is working right for Cuban independence, and in a short time his recruits will be organized and more effective, and the insurrection will be crushed.

Several conflicts have taken place between the insurgent and Spanish troops. The negroes have generally proved themselves courageous and superior forces.

Gen. Quesada has had several skirmishes with a portion of the forces of Lesca, and reports that his forces have been successful and have taken a number of prisoners who are being treated with kindness. Many of the Spanish soldiers are suffering from the enemy are greatly increased in number. In a week or two the patriots expect to have possession of the whole interior, and then commence the attack upon the fortified towns.

CINCINNATI.

Discussion Among the Sleepers—Drowned—Orphans' Asylum—Whisky Convention.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18.—A short time ago the Orphans' Society, of this city, at one of its meetings, passed a resolution with the intention of having the Asylum for the Children of German Soldiers, established by the National German Soldiers' Association, to be located here next year, and resolved that unless the Orphans' Society should decide to consider the matter favorably, the Asylum would be located elsewhere. The Orphans' Society met last night, and decided to consider the matter favorably, and the contest of which are very lively, since the action of the Orphans' Society was known. The Germans are very much excited, and many rage is in the air.

Several gentlemen have been made for buying the corner-stone of the various orphans' asylums at Xenia to-morrow. Gen. Rosecrans will be present, and Salmon Baxter will make the address.

Thomas Brown, who fell from Central Bridge, was drowned in the Ohio river, while attempting to swim ashore.

The steamship Ben Franklin, of Cincinnati, Capt. Hall, struck a snag and sank in the Ohio river, near Cairo, on the 15th inst. Loss, $15,000; insured for $10,000.

The Democratic State Convention will meet here on the 25th inst., to nominate a State ticket.

The Whisky Convention, which was to have met here on the 18th inst., has been postponed to the 25th inst.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Difficulty Between an Editor and a Carpet-bag U. S. Senator—The Senator Challenges—He Prefers Apologizing to Fighting.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Aug. 18.—For a week past a personal difficulty has been pending between Hon. Wm. Hunter, editor of the Journal, and General Abbott, United States Senator, which grew out of an editorial in the issue of the 9th inst., in which the editors of the Journal were described as "public liars," on account of the alleged injustice done to Abbott in the reports of his speeches. No retraction or correspondence having occurred in the meantime, on Tuesday evening Abbott addressed a note to Hon. Engelhard, which he handed to the latter (Abbott), and not the editor of the Post, was the author of the offensive article, and he was personally responsible for the same.

On Wednesday and Thursday there were unsuccessful efforts made (had Engelhard would attack Abbott on sight, but the vigilance of his authorities prevented. On Thursday Abbott was arrested and placed under bonds to keep the peace. Engelhard successfully evaded arrest until Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, when he was surprised at a private house by the sheriff and his posse and placed under bonds. On Sunday morning Engelhard, with three friends, proceeded to South Carolina, and addressed a communication to Abbott, of which the following is an extract:

"You must now make a full retraction of the offensive and untrue article, and an apology for publishing it, or give me the satisfaction to which I have entitled in accordance with the code of honor."

On Monday Abbott, through some of his friends, replied in a communication, of which the following is an extract:

"By authority of Gen. Abbott, and in his behalf, we retract, for the first article in the Post of the 9th inst., referring to Hon. Jno. Berry stated, and express our regret that it was written and published."

The matter was referred by the friends of both parties to a committee of honor, by whom it was decided that the retraction was not sufficient, and that Abbott must apologize for the personal character of the article. Abbott intended, and expressing regret that it had been so construed.

Financial and Commercial Markets.

Collection of Customs Fees Declared Illegal.

Judge Bent's Letter Thought Unwise and Impolitic.

Geo. H. Pendleton and Hard Money Currency.

Etc., Etc., Etc.

(Special Dispatch to the Courier-Journal.)

MONETARY.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Money easy on call at 6@7 per cent., but no improvement in discounts at 9@11 per cent. We are losing currency to the West. Exchange is in our favor at the South, but the balance is mostly settled with gold, and the export of large amounts of gold from the South depressed the premium, but the close was firmer on the large demand to pay duties, which gradually absorbs the gold pressing on the market and necessitates the sale of carrying and not the specific speculation in the gold-room is in favor of a lower premium.

BONDS.

Government bonds look a decided upward turn. The offerings to the Government were only to about three-fifths the amount called for. The leading dealers made large tenders, and later in the day the market became active and strong. Five-twenties were [illegible] per cent. semi-annual dividend on its stock for the past year. Three and a half per cent. is declared for the second year, four per cent. semi-annual for the third year, and that after the fourth year the dividend on both stocks are [illegible].

CENTRAL PACIFIC.

It is reported that the Commissioner of Customs has declared illegal the practice existing at this point of collecting at the [illegible] fees of the collector, naval officer, assistant, permits, State [illegible], &c., and he expresses the hope that the collection of these fees by the customs officers will cease, and the fees now paid to the State hospitals will no longer prevail. This practice has existed for more than seventy years, and has been sustained by decisions rendered by an act of Congress passed in 1799.

HOYT'S CRITICS.

The papers generally criticise unfavorably Judge Dean's letter to Senator Boutwell as unwise and impolitic, greatly damaging his prospects of success.

THE WORLD ON GRANT.

The World this morning publishes a two column leader on Gen. Grant's letter to the Democratic Committee of Ohio. It examines his financial record and quotes largely from his speeches in Congress to prove that he is committed against an irredeemable paper currency, and says: "If therefore there is any reliance to be placed on Gen. Grant's consistency and a settled conviction, of which he publicly speaks, as his party is pledged to restore hard currency and make it keep money currency the sole legal tender, into which all forms of paper currency shall be specially convertible at the will of the holder, George H. Pendleton is the man."

It appears that the time on the Thames on Saturday was within five seconds of the fastest ever made by Cambridge, twenty-one minutes five seconds in 1868, Oxford's fastest time is twenty-one minutes and twenty-three seconds in 1865, when they beat Cambridge thirteen seconds.

Five cars were thrown off the track, and the tender was turned over two times. The engine was demolished. No person was seriously hurt. The Overland express from Omaha arrived here on time.

The Times says the owers is hardly more deserted than that to which the brave has condemned us. Many people of Spain are confident that a continuance of the present government must lead Carlo to the throne if such is the end of rampant Carlism—to regain power—we have no doubt blood would be shed as wantonly and unjustifiably as by Castelar, down as it has contributed to build it up.

THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19, 1869.

ROUND-ABOUT.

I.

A Day in Adrance.

Croquet is going out of fashion in England and Archery is coming into fashion. The next sensational, theological, which we may expect in Louisville, will be the establishment of ball and bases by our girls for the bow and arrow. What's to be the end of all this? Why they never let us alone! Are they going to keep on going on in this way, constantly? Archery! They have been practising it with bows three feet out of mind! In our instruction. How will it be when they edit the arrows? O, Lord!

II.

Mark Twain.

A genial soul, who never said an incleanest thing in his life, has just purchased an editorial chair for the Express use of a Buffalo paper. Twain's vein has made him a man of means. No journalistic surgeon will cut falter or lancet leather stanch from that Buffalo that he. He means Business. Bogues need make no appeal for Executive clemency, as his idea of clemency is to execute them. With his nerve he will slash a tumor off the body politic as neatly as the Sultan's headsman. His peculiar talent in this line is remarkably marked.

III.

Medical.

It is a source of gratification to all the lovers of good instrumental music among us that an earnest effort has been successfully made to organize an orchestra here of sufficient numbers and proficiency to enable us to have received, now and then, the best works of the best masters. The Musical Fund Society is now in admirable working order. Rehearsals are held once a week and some forty odd members have already taken part in the organization at several rehearsals, which have passed off in a manner which gives us a fine prospect of further excellence. Under the management of Messrs. Hart, Pfaltz, Peters and others there is no doubt of the success of the movement.

IV.

The Sun at the White Sulphur.

The White Sulphur Springs, in Greenbrier, Va., has been a favorite resort for the gentlemen of the South for a hundred years. That body, which has of late years held high carnival at all the Northern watering-places, has not been numbered at the White Sulphur. A few Spanish gents of quality, imported from the North, are reported of late. The late great event was an ox-barbecue, at which that it quite eclipsed Long Branch and Saratoga. Fish—by any number of such creatures as Nimrod and other sporting personals. Our own city, it seems, is represented. It is a good thing, to be at the White Sulphur, every now and then, and we'll be a better to be there on the 20th, at the most 30th.

V.

Beauty's Wages.

From the long purses of Europe's most fashionable hotel, from the palaces of Long Branch and Newport, and even from the more select lodgings at the White Mountains and Saratoga, there comes up the cry of "hotel." In vain does the press send out bill to prod summer Gambetties and the gold to these fashionable resorts. The Man of Money is not responding to the call. The fact is that he has been "bled" to death by his wife and daughters. He is daily on the porch, in the surf and in the ball rooms. What is the result? Scores of females, dressed into the highest style of fashion, are crowding each other's elbows while in the ante-rooms and corridors of the hotel. Scores of gentlemen are seen with their dressy parasols with which they will fan each other lovingly around each other's heads and figure bewitchingly over and over again, while in the ante-rooms and corridors with no horrible clear and won't bite, Ask their tutor so widely.

VI.

Behind the Scenes.

Mr. Pollard, "Southern Historian," &c., has retired to the shades of the almighty work he has been at work on will) in a proclamation he solemnly states that he will not write a book. This is just gilded, which was recently heralded as "all so" behind the scenes, to be the late war. Upon our, upon consideration, to be a supreme relief of late incidents, honesty and genius. It is more comfortable for him than edibly. Though gifted eccentricity in every page. Like all book who write about the war, and never have seen a battle, vindictive subjective, he gulps it that his advice and views are objective. Without about of Mr. Pollard's life and habits we have to say, What he can THEN his hatch off of that gentleman long enough to determine, stare recent with a good deal of wiser and discretion. On the whole this book is the future of a literary hoax with a core kind.

VII.

Reviewers and Authors.

Eugene Benson cites Henry C. Heywood and George Francis Train as illustrations of the "active man" and the "restless man." Train, at age, has "never known how his own property, applying himself exclusively to well-directed enterprises." Heywood, at about of an age, and not unlike in general, is wholly unlike in character. The one has a short, the other a duration. Benson of the disgrace and disaster which has befallen Danville in an attempt to locate the Baptist Theological Seminary there. The mess of purpose and action, as usual, but they always succeed. They do not cajole the public into the belief that they are successful or that they are going to be successful. But they work, they work, constantly and patiently, and they know very well that their work will tell in the long run. Better than they can tell it. The success of the Ann Arbor brilliant, feeble and vacuous, and under the great guns does not grow. The science is as a mill, which stands in one spot, but is ever going, producing something every year.

VIII.

A New Sectional Work.

The Hartford Publishing Company (Hartford, Conn.) have in press, and will publish early next month, a work, unique in character and splendid in execution, entitled "The Land of the Sunrise and Celebration of the Nation," which is a picture of the country and its people, from Washington to Plymouth Rock. It contains a series of views of the most interesting localities, historical, literary, scientific, and industrial, from Washington to Plymouth Rock, with descriptive letter-press. Besides a view of the monument at Plymouth and the old Pilgrim Hollow and Rock, there are views of the Smithsonian Institute, Mount Vernon, Independence Hall, Bunker Hill, Faneuil Hall, Harvard College, Yale College, Trinity College, Girard College, Bethlehem Academy, Lexington, Concord, Plymouth, Cambridge, Salem, Boston, Providence, Newport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Amherst, Williams, Worcester, Lowell, Andover, Princeton, Rutgers, Columbia, Union, Hamilton, Geneva, Cornell, Oberlin, Wooster, Kenyon, Ohio University, Miami University, Indiana University, Wabash College, Hanover College, Asbury University, Wesleyan University, Illinois College, Knox College, Beloit College, Lawrence University, Michigan University, Racine College, Madison University, Iowa College, Missouri University, Washington University, Kansas University, Nebraska University, Minnesota University, Oregon University, California University, Utah University, Dartmouth College, Brown University, Bowdoin College, Williams College, Amherst College, Middlebury College, Vermont University, Rochester University, Cornell University, Hamilton College, Union College, Columbia College, Princeton College, Rutgers College, Lafayette College, Dickinson College, Pennsylvania

The Rebate To-Night.

The Right-of-Way Bill is again discussed in the Board of Aldermen to-night.

We are not disposed to urge precipitate action, but the subject is growing a little serious and the exigencies of many citizens are obvious. The members of the General Council should not by any time, prepared to vote intelligently on the various propositions submitted to them. They are doubtless more easily informed as to the state of the public feeling, and will, of course, represent the interest of the people whose servants they are.

The ordinance which we have had inclined us to believe that there is not nearly so much diversity of opinion now as there was in the early stages of the debate.

A committee is ordained. A change of plans [illegible] depot is decided upon. [illegible] arrangement, whatever it is, must be decided upon to-night. [illegible] will to cheated. It [illegible] killed and, with [illegible] destroying any of our great thoroughfares, is sure travel judiciously now. If we go through the city, to confer upon it the advantages which are supposed to be lodged in railway [illegible] of communication between different parts of the country.

This is the drift of the popular discussion, and it will be the business of the General Council so to shape its action as will best carry out a system of intricate but essential proportions.

The discussion of the route seems to be quite limited to very narrow limits. Brook street and Oak street are to all intents abandoned. Citizens will not listen to either suggestion. The [illegible] is, build we take Beargrass or the river front? The objection to Beargrass is that it will throw the line too far south of the city. The objection to the river front is equal to be its impracticability. The engineers, we suppose, will take a view and if they decide it to be impracticable, there is no doubt that it will become the line of a very great convenience. In reason of a union depot, to its proximity to our business houses, to the vicinity to Main street, Water street, obvious advantages, and to the [illegible] and [illegible] there to the best line [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] property along its entire route, and that the long wharf line is already owned by the company.

We shall look to the debate, which our reporters will report in full, with an interest which is shared by the entire community.

A Fiscal Question.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal:

I find in your issue of the 14th inst. a communication of Mr. Thos. B. Kennedy in answer to one of mine occurring six years which occurred about a bogus] [illegible] on Kentucky, and the conversation in Hinkle Jenkins in the parlor [illegible] I was some of his friends [illegible] the maker of the bonds, and I [illegible] to pay a debt to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
